

Provisional Programme

Thursday 2 September

1345-1400	Reception and welcome
1400-1515	Plenary lecture. Philippa Maddern: Blending in: social structures and emotional climates of step-families in England, c.1350-1500
1515-1530	Tea
1530-1730 3 parallel sessions	Barry Lewis: The Battle of Edgecote or Banbury (1469) through the eyes of contemporary Welsh poets. Adam Chapman: Dug fi at y dug of Iorc/He took me to the Duke of York: Henry Griffith esquire, soldier and servant. Maureen Jurkowski: Who was Walter Brut?	Peter Clarke: Petitioning the pope: English supplicants and Rome in the fifteenth century. Chris Woolgar: The English episcopate and its material possessions in the early fifteenth century. Helen Lunnon: 'Don't be afraid child! I am going to help you in the name of Christ!'. The intention of two 'warrior-saints' on a Norfolk church porch.	Remy Ambuhl: Henry V, captors and prisoners of war Guillaume Sarrat de Tramezaigues: Financing the Battle of Agincourt (1415): an English-French economic history comparative survey. Martin Allen: The Calais mint in peace and war, 1399-1450.
1830-2000 2000	Dinner Keynote lecture: John Hatcher: Unreal real wages: how "golden" was the fifteenth century?

Friday 3 September

0900-1030	Guilhem Pepin: The French offensives of 1404-	Stephanie Collinson: Virtue, glory,	Matthew Holford, A middling sort?
-----------	--	--	--

3 parallel sessions

1407 against Anglo-Gascon Aquitaine.

Chris Ford: England and Flanders, 1403-4: Philip of Burgundy's handling of the 'neutrality' issue.

immortality: Henry V's example for Henry VIII.

Neil Murphy: Royal grace, royal punishment: ceremonial entries and the pardoning of prisoners in later medieval France.

The jurors of inquisitions post mortem, 1422-47

Penny Tucker: The portals of the law are wide open to all who need it; or, how we still misjudge the late medieval law.

1030-1100

Coffee/Tea

1100-1230
3 parallel sessions

Kathleen Walter-Meikle: The absent lieutenant: George, Duke of Clarence, and Ireland.

Lucy Rhymer: 'The most intransigent of the warmongers'? Humphrey, duke of Gloucester and the Hundred Years War.

Anthony Smith: The presence of the past: the world of the late medieval Bokkyng family of Longham (Norfolk).

Simon Lambe: Henry VII and the Somerset gentry.

Rebecca Oakes: Perspectives on occupational health for graduates of Winchester College and New College Oxford: linking late medieval career and life expectancy data (1393-1540)

Rhun Emlyn: Serving church and state: the careers of medieval Welsh students.

1230-1430

Lunch

1430-1600
3 parallel sessions

Adrian Bell and Tony Moore: The first package holidays? The English nobility and the Baltic wars during the late fourteenth and fifteenth centuries.

1: Who went on expedition with the Teutonic knights? (Bell)

2: Early travellers' cheques: the financing of

David Grummitt: Perceptions of the Soldier in Late-Medieval England

Cath Nall: Sacralising warfare in Knyghthode and Bataile

Deborah Youngs: Who were the townswomen of late medieval Wales?

Gemma Watson: Roger Machado: a man of his time

English expeditions to the Baltic (Moore)

1600-1700 Tea; presentations on AHRC projects - The Soldier in Later Medieval England, and The Gascon Roll
1700-1815 Plenary lecture. Sarah Rees Jones: Public space in later medieval English towns
2000 Conference Dinner

Saturday 4 September

0900-1100 3 parallel sessions	Bert Verwerft: Knighthood between the nobility and the prince. Military distinction and social hierarchy in the Burgundian Low Countries.	Thom Richardson: Armour in the fifteenth century.	John Hare: The Cloth industry of southern England in the fifteenth century.
	Laura Crombie: Defence, honour and community, the social and military bonds of the Dukes of Burgundy and the Flemish shooting guilds.	Christopher Allmand: The English translations of Vegetius' "De re militari". What were their authors' intentions?	Michael Hicks: The overland trade of Southampton and its region, 1430-1540
	Andreas Remy: Communal descriptions of battles in the fifteenth century: the siege of London, 1471 and the Battle of Gransdon, 1476	John Milner: English commitment to the 1412 campaign.
1100-1130	Coffee/tea
1130-1245 1245-1400	Plenary lecture. Bertrand Schnerb: Foreign troops in Burgundian armies (c. 1360-c.1477) Lunch; conference closes		